COMMITTEE OF THREE RAILROAD MEN WILL DISCUSS DEMANDS WITH PRESIDENT

WILSON EXPECTED TO MAKE FRANK AND FINAL REPLY TO BROTHERHOODS

JEWELL OF FEDERATION, MANION OF TELE-
GRAPHERS, AND SHEA OF ENGINEERS
AND FIREMEN ARE TRIO

M. OF W. MEN FIRM FOR STRIKE

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Bert M. Jewell, head of the American Federation of Labor Railroad Department today was named chairman of the committee of three to meet President Wilson. The other members are J. E. Manion of the Railroad Telegraphers and Timothy Shea, head of the Firemen and Enginemen.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—President Wilson will meet a delegation of three railroad union officials at 10:30 tomorrow morning it was announced at the White House today. It is expected that the President at that time will give the railroad workers the answer to their demands for an immediate wage increase which they have been pressing in negotiations with Rail Director Hines. These negotiations have been in progress since February 3. The three members of the delegation will be selected from representatives of the fourteen brotherhood unions. They will see the President as he sits in his chair in the White House garden.

Putting the fact squarely up to Wilson will not cause the cancellation of the strike order effective Tuesday when 300,000 members of the Union Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way employees walk out, Vice President Malloy said today. "The only thing that will avert the strike is the granting of our demands," said Malloy. Malloy said that a letter had been drafted to Hines by the sub-committee of his union yesterday. The letter is intended to give Hines one more chance to meet the demands of the workers, Malloy said.

President Wilson will find it difficult to grant the demands of the unions, officials predicted today. They declare that President Wilson is no more likely to authorize the increases than was Hines who maintains that such action would be unfair in view of the fact that the owners will take back the railroads March 1st.

William G. Lee, of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen telegraphed Rail Director Hines this morning and asked for a conference. Lee has given Hines another notice that his union wishes to terminate its present contract, February 23d.

BRUTAL FATHER SHOTS DAUGHTER

PINEVILLE, W. Va., Feb. 11.—Alleged to have shot his daughter because he objected to her attending school, Andrew Bradbury was taken in charge here today. His daughter is in a local hospital in a critical condition.

U. S. SHIP AVONDALE REPORTED SINKING

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—The Avondale, United States shipping board tanker, with her anchor disabled was sinking in the Atlantic today according to a wireless received from Key West Naval Radio station here. She was located 170 miles southeast of Nantucket light ship. The Avondale has a crew of 140 men.

FEEDING PHEASANTS AND QUAIL

State Game Protectors W. C. Kelly, of DuBois, and W. J. Davis, of Clearfield, were out on the mountains Wednesday, looking after the welfare of the game-birds in the region of Kennedy Park Reserve. They report quite a number of pheasants and found one flock of more than thirty in one of the sheltered ravines in Kennedy Park.

Feed was placed at several points and the birds went to work on same very promptly.

Game Protector Davis also took a quantity of feed out to a flock of quail in the upper end of Lawrence township.

"THE TRUEST AMERICAN"

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 12. (United Press).—"Abraham Lincoln was the greatest and truest American." That was the simple statement of Edward Johnson, 76, one of the few living persons who knew the great emancipator personally, when asked for a comment on Lincoln on the occasion of the 111th anniversary of his birth.

Johnson is custodian of Lincoln's tomb here and is one of the three surviving witnesses to the exhuming of the martyred president's body when it was removed to its final resting place under the big monument in Oak Ridge cemetery here.

MARKET STREET SCHOOL ENTERTAINMENT TONIGHT

The Lincoln Day play, "With Fire and Drum," will be given by the pupils of the Market Street schools, this evening at the High School Auditorium. The proceeds will be used to increase the school library, and the entertainment will be well worth seeing, a full house should greet the little folks.

W. F. Dale, of Madera, was a visitor to Clearfield today.

ANNUAL MEETING OF FARM BUREAU IS ANNOUNCED

An invitation is extended to all farmers and others interested in agriculture in Clearfield county to attend the annual meeting of the farm bureau to be held Friday, February 20, 1920. There will be morning and afternoon sessions both of which will be held in the court house. The county agent desires a full attendance at this meeting at which time plans for the work to be taken up this year should be discussed.

The following program has been arranged for this meeting:

10:30 Meeting called to order by the President.

Reading of the minutes of last annual meeting by the secretary.

Report of the treasurer.

Report of the president.

Report of activities of the Clearfield county cooperative association by Harrison Straw.

Nomination and election of officers.

Noon recess.

1:30 "Marketing Problems," Guy B. Smith, chief of state bureau of market, Harrisburg, Pa.

County agent's report and plans for the year, W. D. Sterrett.

Discussion of work this year by farm bureau members.

Adjournment.

The farm bureau officials would like to have you speak to your neighbors concerning this annual meeting, and urge them to attend. We feel that a good program has been arranged and that the discussions of the day will be well worth the time of any farmer who can arrange to be present.

W. C. STERRETT,
County Agent

CENTRAL PENNSYLVANIA BANKERS IN SESSION

Group Six of the Pennsylvania Bankers' Association met in Altoona today and some twenty or twenty-five Clearfield bankers were in attendance at the sessions.

Among other things discussed and displayed on this occasion when the crowd got together was a discourse on the care and treatment of the robust ever-blooming "interest plant," how to combat the deadly "red ink balance," means to overcome the "over-draft" weevil and the best method of keeping tab on "unhealthy accounts."

A local expert delivered a carefully worded talk on "The best and most painless way in which to turn down a borrower when the indorser himself didn't want it to get by." The boys enjoyed their instructive "day off" to the limit.

WOODLAND REVIVAL PROGRESSING

The meeting in the Woodland United Brethren church is progressing finely. There have been nine at the altar so far. Attendance is good and interest is increasing. There has been some sickness among the people which has hindered the work. The choir has been hard hit. Mrs. N. G. Stewart, Mrs. V. G. Henderson, Miss Mable Albert, Mr. J. V. Knepp and Mrs. J. J. Lenz are all members of the choir, and are confined at home by sickness. The pastor has a case of sore throat and will not be able to preach for a few nights. Rev. W. A. Wissinger, pastor of the Clearfield U. B. church, will preach in the interim. Those spared will keep the work moving, get right with the Lord and support the agencies of salvation by their prayers.

Mrs. William Bush has returned from Williamsport, where she visited her daughter Vera, who is a student at Dickinson College.

GREAT BRITAIN FACE TO FACE WITH GOVERNMENT BY LABOR

Old Parties Appear To Lack Vitality and Leadership and Change Seems Imminent

By PERY M. SARRL
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, (By Mail).—"How would the accession to power of a labor government, in Great Britain affect us?" is a question which the United States should be considering now. For the day of its realization is not far off, according to every expert sounder of public opinion here.

"The Fitness of Labor to Govern" is past the academic debating society stage in this country, and it is now a burning question in British political life. Moreover, it is being studied in every phase by those who will decide the matter—the voters of Great Britain. At the moment there is a distinct "Give them a chance" feeling throughout the country, as evidenced by every by-election since the general election of December, 1918, when the present coalition government was returned.

The Lloyd George coalition, composed, ironically enough, mainly of his former political foes, the Conservatives or Unionists, was elected by an overwhelming majority as a result of the national relief over the cessation of hostilities. They were able to go to the elections and say "We have won the war, let us win the peace" and the result was an inevitable "vote of thanks."

But the delays of the Paris peace conference, the realization that the end of the war did not mean a return to pre-war conditions, and the long continuance of war-time controls, restrictions, taxation and heavy expenditure, together with a further increase in the cost of living, demobilization, unemployment and housing problems, inevitably caused a reaction. Coalitions are not popular in Britain, but the war-bred combination of the modern men of the two great political parties—labor was offered a place, but refused and practically excommunicated the few leaders of their party who remained with the government—has disclosed the fact that there is only one great political leader in the country—Premier David Lloyd George.

Lloyd George, the "Little Welsh Wizard" is a magnetic personality, but he is a man without a party at the moment. Formerly an advanced Liberal, he has alienated most of his former partisans by his concessions to the Conservatives, who form the great majority of his coalition, while the latter ungratefully enough resent every concession to his Liberalism and feel that they are holding the bag for a political foe.

However, Andrew Bonar Law, Conservative leader, who loyally sticks to his job as second in command to Lloyd George, evinces no disposition to branch out as an independent leader and the Conservatives have no outstanding figure with whom to replace him. Equally, the anti-Lloyd George Liberals have no outstanding leader, for Herbert H. Asquith, ex-premier, who rallied the dissident Liberals, is now a dead-letter, standing personalities. Hence the politician who wants to get back to party politics does not know which way to turn.

It is against labor that they also have no outstanding leader, and are apparently not too sure in which direction they wish to be led, but Horatio Bottomley, the well-known Independent Liberal publicist, says in his newspaper, JOHN BULL, the cry of "Open your mouth and shut your eyes and see what Lloyd George will give you" is no longer good enough for Mr. Man-in-the-Street and Mrs. Woman-in-the-Home. Labor has gained so much during the past twelve months, in the way of wage increases—even if they do not do much more than keep pace with advancing prices—that the average voter naturally says "They might do something for me." Lloyd George's fiery Celtic imagination and sym-thy—his political opponents call it plain "vote-catching opportunism"—has therefore done little but alienate former supporters who realize that there are limits beyond which even his temperamental viewpoint will not go.

The one thing that will defeat labor in the next election is a scare-mongering, anti-revolutionary slogan launched by a man like Lloyd George who can combine the moderates of all parties. Such an election platform would probably sweep the country, just as did Lloyd George's "Make the Germans pay," "Bridge the war criminals to justice" swept the country in the post-war general election of 1918. But if the moderates can only keep the revolutionaries in check, labor will win the next election.

At present nearly all the responsible labor leaders may be numbered among the moderates. Robert Smillie, the miners' leader; Frank Hodges, his lieutenant; Robert Williams, transport workers' leader, and Charles T. Cramp, who is rapidly ousting J. H. Thomas as the railwaymen's leader, (to mention the three great union-candidates to British labor), are frankly revolutionary, but they do not get elected to parliament. Ironically enough their own followers seem to vote them down when they are put up for parliament.

If a labor government were returned within the next twelve months, Arthur Henderson would almost certainly be Premier. He does not entirely satisfy either the "reds" or the moderates, so should be a fairly satisfactory leader. And the man from whom he would have to choose his cabinet are practically all moderates. The press has recently been selecting possible labor cabinets, including J. B. Clynes, William Bruce, James O'Grady, G. J. Wardle, Stephen Walsh, Ben C. Spoor, W. E. Smith, G. H. Roberts, J. H. Thomas, Ben Tillett, James Hodge, G. H. Stuart-Bunning, George N. Barnes, Vernon Hartshorn, C. B. Stanton and James Sexton. All these are experienced trade union officials who should make excellent administrators.

Two leading laborites not yet mentioned are J. Ramsey MacDonald and Philip Snowden. They are of the intellectual revolutionary type. Both were decisively defeated at the last election, but may secure re-election later, and in a moderate cabinet might do good work without being dangerous. It is an open secret that Ramsey MacDonald has slated himself for the foreign or colonial office, while Snowden has his eye on the job of chancellor of exchequer.

Labor, however, does not pretend to understand the socialism of statesmen like Clemenceau, Briand and others. A labor government here would probably lead to a weakening of the entente cordiale and to a gradual estrangement from Italy, which is now regarded by "reds" here as a stronghold of militarism. Countries like Spain would probably be more or less ignored, unless a British labor cabinet was embroiled with the Madrid government through unwisdom support of the Barcelona extremists. The United States and South America, three thousand miles or more distant, would not receive much attention, and this would be likely to lead to continual diplomatic friction.

Such is the only conclusion that can be drawn from the records and utterances of British labor statesmen. The big men who might be capable and desirous of carrying on foreign policy or orthodox lines would most likely find themselves drawn into all sorts of petty domestic squabbles, which ought to be handled by subordinates. The permanent officials of the foreign, colonial and trade departments might be able to carry on, but every indication is that they would be cramped by the supervi-

Supreme Council In Session At London

Refusal Of Germany To Turn Over War Criminals For Trial Is Main Topic

HUNS FALL DOWN ON PROMISES

LONDON, Feb. 11.—London today has replaced Paris as the seat of deliberations to settle problems growing out of the world war. The Big Three is in session to decide the future Allied attitude toward Russia, the settlement of the Adriatic dispute between Italy and Jugo-Slavia, the position of Constantinople, measures to force Germany to live up to Article 228 of the Treaty of Versailles and the League of Nations meeting to bring about the organization of the new society. London has become the moment virtually the capital of Europe.

One of the first questions to be brought up will be Germany's refusal to deliver the war guilty for trial before the Allied tribunals as demanded, and the delay on Germany's part in delivering coal to France as provided for in the treaty. Germany is ready is far behind in these deliveries, French officials have complained.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY WARNS AGAINST USE OF CARNIVAL GAMBLING DEVICES

It is desired to give notice that the practice of maintaining and operating gambling devices at Carnivals, Fairs and other places is a direct violation of the law.

It has been the custom for persons desiring to make a living by means of such violations to give a small proportion of the fruits of their crime to some worthy object—with the evident purpose of discouraging criminal prosecutions. This will not avail. This method of earning a livelihood by enticing and procuring money from boys, girls and all other persons is as reprehensible as it is unlawful and it is not made any the less so by acts of alleged charity paid for from their spoils.

We may add that an examination of the records of our criminal court for the past two years, show that the carnivals have left in their wake a train of runaway children, ruined girls and depraved boys, forgery, thievery, burglary and even murder. All of which tends to prove a well known principle of criminology: that criminal practices permitted and encouraged inevitably breed a host of deeper and more violent crimes.

SENATE HEARS LINCOLN ADDRESS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—The Senate today adjourned as a mark of respect to the memory of Abraham Lincoln. Adjournment followed the reading of Lincoln's Gettysburg address by Senator Keyes of New Hampshire. He read from the original manuscript in Lincoln's writing and which has been in the possession of the Keyes family many years.

NEW INTERIOR SECRETARY NAMED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—John Barton Payne today was named Secretary of the Interior. Lane's resignation becomes effective March 1.

KAISER OBJECTS TO OFFER OF SOOT

BERLIN, Feb. 11.—Delayed—The former Kaiser has forbidden his son, the former Crown Prince, to surrender himself to the Allies and has requested the Dutch government to prevent such procedure, the Dutch Krassel said today.

of an earnest reformer who would attempt to put down "officialdom" on bureaucratic lines.

The most disturbing feature about British labor is the inclination of the rank and file to follow extremists' advice and throw over their tried and trusted moderate leaders. If the moderates can keep control, there is every chance of the next election turning a labor government out of the extremes power, which might happen. In the last year or election would be fought on labor clear-war issues, whereas the earlier parties would raise the banner of bolshevism, possibly with status as well as regards the maintenance of order.

ENFORCEMENT OR PERSECUTION—WHICH?

Administration of the prohibition law in this district is apparently for the purpose of making prohibition as odious as possible, at least that is the effect from the manner in which the proposition is being handled. The attitude of numerous federal officers is too well known to be commented upon further. It will be recalled that it was the liquor interests who insisted that search and seizure clauses be inserted in the prohibition law. When it became a certainty that booze was to be outlawed they sought to work as many hardships as possible in the hope that public sentiment would demand a return of liquor in preference to fanatical enforcement of the law. The prohibition law provides for the dispensing of all the alcohol necessary for medicinal purposes in the ordinary practice of medicine and to take care of emergencies but the administration of the law or lack of administration is having the opposite effect.

There is a flu epidemic in Clearfield today. Not one prescription druggist in Clearfield has an ounce of alcohol for the preparation of the physician's prescriptions. There are thousands of barrels of alcohol on the market. In many cases it has been bought and paid for by the local druggists but the necessary blanks to be filled out and sent to the enforcement officer of this district have not been given attention and the wholesale drug houses are not permitted to ship the alcohol until they receive the necessary government release document.

The fault is not with the law but rather the administration of the law.

WHAT WOULD LINCOLN SAY TODAY?

Extract from speech by Will H. Hays
Lincoln Day Republican Meeting today at St. Louis
What would Lincoln say today? Presumptuous as it might seem to assume to answer the question, surely no harm can come from asking it. Could we in fact do better than pause occasionally in the present turmoil of existence and seek guidance from the great minds whose still living words have never failed to point the paths which invariably have proved to be the true ones? And was there ever before a time when thought upon what Lincoln would or even might think, say and do could have been more helpful or more inspiring than now?

Recognition of Lincoln's true greatness has grown steadily since he died a martyr to the great cause, but none can fail to realize that during the past few years it has been enhanced mightily throughout the world. "There goes the spirit of Lincoln at the head," ejaculated the Premier of England when he saw the advance guard of American soldiers sweeping forward over Flanders fields. And when the awful carnage ceased the foremost of living philosophers, gazing apprehensively into the troubled future, murmured despairingly, "What Europe needs now is a Lincoln."

Truer words were never spoken. Who else in all history was so well equipped as he to raise a great continent, even as a mere Phoenix, from the ashes of calamity? And why? Because of his fame? No. In that respect he had been surpassed by many. Because of his superior achievements in war or in peace? No. Because of the faith that men had in him while he lived and have in him still in vastly greater measure these long years since he passed away.

To say this is to say much but not too much of him whom we proudly acclaim and who now is universally conceded the truest type of the truest American ever sprung from American soil.

If an Abraham Lincoln were and still may be the chief need of Europe how much more surely should he be the guiding star of his own native land, the only land he ever knew, the only land he ever loved except as his great heart was filled with loving kindness for all mankind. We have not the man, but we have his spirit; we have his faith; we have his words:

"History is the voice of God sounding across the centuries the laws of right and wrong."
"Eternal right makes right. As we understand our duty let us do it."

Let us stop there. Let that be the message that we believe Lincoln would bring to us tonight, venturing only to add what he almost surely would say in simple phrase:—And don't get discouraged. There is no problem Americans cannot solve. There never has been. There never will be. Look forward, not backward. Look up, not down. God will do the rest, not for America only, but through America, for the world.

FROM THE BOX OFFICE POINT OF VIEW

By their patronage of the theatre Clearfield people register their desire at the box office. Running a theatre is a business enterprise and the manager of the Clearfield theatre cannot be expected to book high grade operas when they are not patronized. This season we have seen two or three very fine shows at the local theatre but the attendance was small which, we were told caused the theatre manager to cancel other good ones because he could not make the guarantee required by the company. We are told that other headliners themselves cancelled when they heard how poorly the high class attractions had been patronized. Last evening a third rate company with a fourth rate vehicle visited Clearfield and played to a crowded house. The manager of the theatre is therefore justified in booking such attractions. The theatre goes have indicated their taste and it is up to the manager to give them what they want. Do not blame the theatre for the rotten shows. If you patronize the good shows he will give them to you just as well. Of course the matter of seat prices have a great deal to do with attendance. A dollar show will get a crowd and we will be in that crowd. We are in that class but if we cannot get good shows for a dollar would it not be better to get six headliners during the season than to get sixteen rotten and spots. It will be no loss to the theatre. The photo play will fill the void. What do you want in the show line, Clearfielders? It is up to you to show by your patronage.

WHAT THE TOWN HAS WAITED FOR

With one bold stroke of his pen District Attorney Arnold has affixed his signature to a warning that gambling devices such as those used at carnivals will not be permitted in Clearfield County and by his act has raised Clearfield County another notch in the good opinion of neighboring counties. The use of these devices is and has been a clear violation of the laws of our state but because of interlocking interests officials of the law have been disposed to keep in the distance while those blood suckers who prey on the young and the foolish plied their nefarious trade under the very dome of the temple of justice and in the shadow of the stone and wood structures dedicated to the furtherance of the gospel of Him who drove the money changers from the holy temple of worship. No one can have any respect for the type of gambler who stoops to the paddle wheel and the marked square. Along side of him the poker player who meets his adversary or skill is a prince.

The action of the District Attorney will not debar good shows and carnivals from coming here. On the contrary it will be an invitation to the round tent operators to send a good bangup aggregation of attractions here which will amuse instruct and entertain us without resorting to methods little short of daylight robbery. The action is certain to have a good influence on our county fair. The midway at the fair has not been what it ought to be. The warning of the prosecuting attorney will prevent the return here of the riff-raff which gained admittance to our beautiful fair grounds last year and the year before. In its place we may expect to see something worth while.

On behalf of our readers, we congratulate District Attorney Arnold for having the courage to take this stand in ridding the county of these crime breeding traveling circuses which are merely traveling gambling houses with a few shows for bait.

Words.

"And now," concluded the super orator, as he bowed to the frenzied applause of the common people, "I have made my point clear to this intelligent audience. I will feel that I have failed of my purpose. However, the greatest of mortals is prone to err, so, in justice to the great issue at stake, I trust that anyone who understands what the League of Nations really is will ask such questions as will enable me to obscure such parts of it as may be clear to you now."
..... Silence. More silence. And then some.

"Ah! Your silence is flattering. Indeed, if you will now dispense with shaking my hand, I will bid you adieu, as I must save my energy for the speech I am to deliver tomorrow before the former munition makers on 'How to Combat the High Cost of Living.'—Life.

European Tarantula.

An eminent authority in such matters, in remarking that the tarantula is a spider, says of that terrifying creature that it is the Lycosa Tarantula, a species of spider found in some of the warmer parts of Italy and Spain. When full grown it is about the size of a chestnut and of a brown color. Its bite was at one time supposed to be dangerous and to induce a kind of "dancing disease," but now it is known not to be worse than the sting of a common wasp.

It is an old fable, extending to remotest times, that the bite of this spider would produce epilepsy or a strange dancing mania in its victims and that this epilepsy or madness could be relieved only by a particular kind of music. The tarantula of Italy and Spain—and it is found in those countries today—has hairy legs with black markings on them.

America's Debt to Jews.

Jews figured very prominently in the discovery of America by Columbus according to Rabbi David Philipson of Cincinnati. The first man who stepped on the shore of the new world was the interpreter of the expedition, Luis de Torres, a Jew. Bernal, the ship surgeon, was also a Jew, as were several members of the crew.

It is also now said to be established that the long-credited belief that Queen

Isabella pawned her jewels to furnish Columbus with the funds for the trip is a legend. These funds, it is said, were furnished by two Jews, Luis de Santangel and Gabriel Sanchez. A letter by Columbus to Sanchez is still extant, in which he gives some account of his exploits.

Who Knows?

A friend of mine called upon a newly wedded pair and I happened to drop in. The lady had been a widow. My friend remarked to me, "You introduced them to each other, didn't you?" "Why, yes," I foolishly blurted out. "I introduced her to her first and second husbands and who knows but what I'll be the one to introduce her to her third one?"—Exchange.

Approaching the End.

Cleopatra in dialogue entitled "De Senectute" makes one of his interlocutors say that all men wish to attain old age and yet complain of the fact when they have attained it. He adds that one of the grievances of the old is that age steals over them more rapidly than they expected. It is pointed out that we cannot prevent time from passing, and that even if we lived eight hundred instead of eighty years the past time, however long, cannot when it has flown away be able to "smother with any consolation for an old age of folly."

A Sister Wilhelm Did Not Like.

Princess Charlotte of Meiningen, sister of the ex-kaiser, who died recently, had been a sufferer for years and had undergone many operations. She passed most of her time on the Riviera. Indeed, the princess was a woman you couldn't miss. She wore bobbed hair, when no other woman had ever dreamed of such a thing, and talked democracy, and smoked all the time. The ex-kaiser was rather alarmed at her vagaries and preferred his other sister, Queen Sophie of Greece, who is more his sort.—London Mail.

Largest Movie House.

New York has in building a moving picture theater with a seating capacity of 5,500, which may constitute it the largest of its kind anywhere. Judging by the heavy patronage in other such places, the new house may be filled at the chief performances. The public is seeking professional entertainment as never before.

A KINDLY FRESHET

By T. B. ALDERSON

(Copyright, 1919, Western Newspaper Union)

Jabez Arnold had closed his general store at 10 o'clock as was usually his custom. The group of evening loungers had departed, the front door was locked, but he made no move to proceed up stairs where he lived with his family. His son and helper, Gregory, yawned wearily.

"Going to wait?" he inquired.

"Yes, this is Thursday night, you know."

"That's so—Morton Bridges?"

The father nodded assentingly. The son dozed in his chair. He was aroused by a sharp tap at the rear door.

"Make yourself scarce," spoke the father. "Bridges don't like to have anybody around when he comes after his weekly supplies," and old Jabez proceeded to the rear door.

He opened it to disclose a man of perhaps thirty, although his trampish attire and neglected beard made him look ten years older.

"It's you Bridges, is it?" propounded Jabez, but his visitor simply nodded an assent that was wordless. The storekeeper accepted a written sheet of paper which the visitor had placed on the counter with two capacious baskets. He stood like a statue until Jabez had filled the long written order, packed the articles and figured up their price. Bridges paid his bill and left the place as silently as he had come.

For two years, every Thursday of the week Morton Bridges, hermit, had gone through this same unvaried performance. Hot or cold, rain or snow, he had never missed that weekly visit to the store. No one had ever been present there except Jabez, only a few of the villagers had seen that ghost-like figure stoop into the town.

Morton Bridges was a promising young business man when he fell in love with Naomi Brill. For six months they were seen together, then all of a sudden because of a trivial lover's quarrel there was a separation. The local newspaper one day announced the prospective marriage of Miss Brill to one Bradley Wayne. The next day Morton Bridges sold out his business and disappeared.

It was some time before his friends learned of his whereabouts. Then a man who had been hunting for the coming across the fugitive, the exile on Waverly Island, a small body of land situated in the middle of a branch of the turbulent Black river. The discoverer of the missing man had hailed Bridges at a distance, but the latter had made no acknowledgment of the greeting and had disappeared within a small lighted structure, but where he had isolated himself. Bridges had shut himself off from the world completely. His only contact with it was when he visited the store of Jabez Arnold to purchase household necessities to add to his rather restricted menu of fish and game.

It was destined, however, that this regular system was to be disturbed. He did not appear at the general store the Thursday following that just described. Again Jabez Arnold and his son sat up to meet him. They even remained on duty an hour beyond the prescribed time. Then sleepy-headed Gregory crossly suggested that they had done their full duty.

"Yes," acquiesced the father. "It's the floods, Gregory. They say the Black river is in a roaring torrent, and the island pretty near out of sight."

This was not literally true, but the sweeping waters, fed by a period of phenomenal rains, the daily encroachment upon the island had made it dangerous for Bridges to leave the lonely spot he called home. Then came the climax. The water had for some days flooded the lower part of the hut, and he had been forced to cook his meals on a high spot beyond the sight of the cabin. Nights, however, he slept in a sort of garret space formed by the roof rafters of his circumscribed dwelling. He awoke one night with the shock of a jar. He lifted himself on the rude mattress across the rafters.

"Afloat!" he commented, peering through a break in the roof. With incredible rapidity the frail hut was being borne along the swollen stream. Darkness and devastation surrounded him. The framework was holding together stanchly, although at times it was whirled about in the maelstrom rush and havoc like a feather in a whirlpool.

Bridges enlarged the hole in the roof so as to be ready to trust to his powers of swimming if collapse came. Hours ensued, miles were covered. He was lulled somewhat because outside of frequent collisions with other floating objects, no real disaster resulted. Half-asleep finally, he was conscious of the hut being tossed up and forward. It collapsed and, driven senseless, he lay on dry land, amid its ruins.

It was broad daylight and the sun was shining down on his face as he recovered sensibility. A woman stood over him.

"Morton Bridges?" she spoke in a bewildered gasp. "How came you here? I must run and tell my niece, Naomi. She has been living with me since her mother died."

"Naomi?" repeated Bridges vaguely. "You mean Mrs. Bradley Wayne?"

"What gave you that idea?" Naomi is not married. Did some one make you think so? Is that why you disappeared? Oh, she will be glad to see you."

She was—so glad that, after a mutual explanation, Morton Bridges proceeded to get back to civilization—and love.

"KEEP TO THE RIGHT" SIGN IS EXPLAINED BY STATE OFFICIALS

HARRISBURG, Feb. 12.—Under way over No. 4. No. 4 has the right of way over No. 1. Proper observance of the law by drivers of all vehicles is expected to decrease accidents at the intersection of town, township, or county, shall public highways. The diagram illustrates the state's law governing regulation, or ordinance, regulating the speed, equipment, use or operation of motor vehicles, other than city or borough ordinances regulating the stopping and parking of vehicles, the use of certain streets as one way streets or regulating the kind and weight of traffic on certain streets and public parks, no such fishing safety zones; no such special regulations effective unless notice of same is conspicuously posted.

UP GOES COFFEE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12. (United Press).—Visions of further increased prices in coffee faces the public following the statement that coffee imports in 1919 doubled in value as compared with 1918, though there was but a slight increase in quantity.

A blighted coffee crop in Brazil, prohibition and a strenuous coffee advertising campaign are blamed for the jump, which will have to be met by every American household.

According to Department of Commerce figures 1,235,532,102 pounds of coffee were imported by the United States at a cost of $239,400,798. This is more than double what was paid for the 1,215,288,752 pounds imported in 1917. In 1918, 998,516,598 pounds were imported at a cost of $92,529,306.

Prices are still rising according to latest monthly statistics. In November 108 million pounds were imported at a cost of $25,321,726. October figures showed coffee imported amounted to 102 million pounds, valued at $24,445,458.

MUTT AND JEFF GOT BIG CROWD

Bud Fisher's famous characters in the flesh drew the biggest crowd of its history to the Driggs theatre last evening. The "S. R. O." sign going up before 8:00, while many were turned away unable even to get standing room. The crowd was fine. The show was not so well.

What Becomes of Waste Paper?

(National Crop Improvement Service.) THE price of waste paper never was so high as at present and yet a very large percentage of it is burned every day. The newspapers are cutting down their editions as a result of a shortage of print paper. This is not because there is less print paper but because the demand has grown so enormous that the mills are overtaxed. The margin on papers of all kinds has been so small that capital has not been attracted to this field, but the prices are now at a point where new machinery may be installed at a profit. "Waste paper should not be left loose for several reasons: First, it is a dangerous fire risk and, second, it occupies too much space. Some systematic way should be made in every department store and in every neighborhood to gather the paper day by day. There has been so little profit in it in the past that most people have preferred to burn up their paper," says Mr. Frank Baackes, American Steel & Wire Company. "Paper cannot be handled in small lots to advantage and the price increases with the amount available at any one point. If it is baled, as it should be, and stored, it will bring from $15 to $25 a ton, to which must be added the expense and dealer's profit for gathering the paper, sorting it and shipping it to the mills. "There are a few large newspapers like the Chicago Tribune, the New York Times, which have their own paper mills, but they cannot use a very large proportion of the paper which has been printed, as the stock must go into making books and other cheaper forms of paper. "It may be said that there is no money enough to make a business of it, but I know a colored man in Chicago who, being out of a job, went around the neighborhood and picked up paper and made $2.00 the first day and he says now that when he is out of a job he can make $7 or $8 a day and with a one-horse wagon can make $25 to $30 a day. "It would seem, therefore, that if this business were systematically handled, that a great conservation could be made. The baling of paper is very much like the baling of straw or hay and for the same reason should have a very good quality of bale ties because the stuff is heavy and a broken bale will waste a lot of money. "We, Americans, waste a great deal of the things on which pennies make a fine profit."

What H. C. L. Really Means!

Town folks think it's High Cost of Living. Farmers know it's High Cost of Loafing—not on the farm, where the day is sixteen hours long, but in factories and shops, where the workers want to quit after six or seven hours. This H. C. L. plus the H. C. S.—the High Cost of Spending—are the sky-rockets that keep prices up, says

The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN

I wish you'd read about The High Cost of Loafing in the Great National Farm Weekly. It would be worth the subscription price of $1.00 a year to you!

Farmers need to get together to combat these city-bred notions that the high cost of living originates on the farm, and they can do it better through THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN than by any other means. The fair-minded town folks need to reconstruct their silly ideas and find out what H. C. L. really means, and they can complete their education for $1.00 by subscribing now for THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN. I'm selling the greatest reading bargain on the market today—32 big, interesting, helpful weekly issues of THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN for only $1.00.

Hot Water Each Morning Puts Roses in Your Cheeks

To look one's best and feel one's best is to enjoy an inside bath each morning to flush from the system the previous day's waste, sour fermentations and poisonous toxins before it is absorbed into the blood. Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of combustible material in the form of ash, so the food and drink taken each day leave in the alimentary tract a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not eliminated forms toxins and poisons which are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which are intended to suck in only nourishment to sustain the body.

If you want to see the glow of healthy bloom in your cheeks, to see your skin clear and clearer, you are told to drink every morning upon arising, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless means of washing the waste material and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.

Girls and women with sallow skins, liver spots, pimples or pallid complexion, also those who wake up with a coated tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, others who are bothered with headaches, bilious spells, acid stomachs or constipation should begin this phosphate treatment. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store, but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, purifies and freshens the skin on the outside, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the inside organs. We must always consider that internal sanitation is vastly more important than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do.

Women who desire to enhance the beauty of their complexion should just try this for a week and notice results.

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS CURWENSVILLE

Mrs. H. J. Kittelberger received a telegram yesterday announcing the death of her mother, which occurred in Pittsburgh the evening previous, of pneumonia. Her age was 76 years. Her remains were taken to Hubbersburg, Pa., for burial. Mrs. Kittelberger being unable to attend the funeral on account of herself being ill, as well as two of her children.

V. H. Reed, of Ridge avenue, was summoned to Cambria county on Tuesday on receipt of a telegram announcing the death of a brother, Herbert Reed. Deceased was a son of Jordan Reed, and was born and raised on a farm in Lawrence township. He was a brother of Miss Clara Reed, also of Curwensville.

Express Agent W. A. Thompson was notified yesterday to cease all shipments for New York City, owing to the conditions of the city, goods could not be handled and delivered to parties to whom they were addressed.

Mrs. Howard Crownover was brought home from Clearfield Hospital Tuesday evening, her condition, after suffering in operation, being greatly improved.

John Myers, who suffered considerably for several days from hicough, and whose condition was pronounced dangerous, we are pleased to state is now in a fair way to complete recovery, his struggle with that peculiar ailment having been overcome, but leaving him in a weakened physical condition.

Melinda Abrino is lying very ill at the home of his mother in Nantua, and little hope is entertained for his recovery.

A meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held at the home of Mrs. Fannie Daub, on Ridge avenue on Friday evening. All members are earnestly requested to be present.

The Senior Class of the High School are enjoying themselves this evening by holding a social in Grange hall.

The C. E. Society of the Presbyterian church, held a Valentine Social last evening, in which a large number of young folks participated and enjoyed themselves greatly.

The mines in this vicinity are working on an average of about 70 per cent. of their output. Shortage of cars is said to be the cause. Car shortage not only applies to mines but to all other industries hereabouts.

Following the Red Cross roll call membership drive in November, 1919, Curwensville is credited with having 432 members and club contribution of $632, a dollar per member.

The funeral of Mrs. Charles Smith will be held from the home on Susquehanna avenue, South Side, on Friday afternoon, at 2 o'clock. Rev. Mr. Biddle, of the M. E. church, will be the minister in charge. Interment in Oak Hill cemetery.

Miss Ruth Young, a daughter of Samuel and Marjorie Welsh Young, died at the home of her parents on South Side, Tuesday afternoon about 5 o'clock, from pneumonia, after a short illness. She was employed as a telephone operator at the Crescent Refractories Company's office. Her age was 33 years. She is survived by her father and mother, three brothers and three sisters, viz: Harry, residing at Newberry; Charles and Fred, of Curwensville; Mrs. A. C. Becker, of DuBois; Mrs. William Reiner, of Oil City, and Miss Ada, at home. Deceased had many warm friends in Curwensville, who deeply sympathize with the bereaved family in their loss. Her funeral was held this afternoon from her home.

KEEP TONSILS CLEAN

Avoid Colds, Catarrh, Sore Throat By Using MU-COL

The tonsils should be systematically cleaned each day, says authority. Infected tonsils cause mouth-breathing, enlarged neck glands, frequent sore throat and tonsillitis; bad breath and oftentimes deafness.

Excellent results have been obtained from the use of MU-COL, a pleasant antiseptic powder from which warm solutions can readily be made and used at body temperature.

A cleansing gargle with MU-COL solution each night and morning is of great service. At the same time the solution should be sniffed up from the palm of the hand, or a nasal douche can be used with good effect to clean out the nasal cavity.

Carry out this treatment each day and you need not fear colds and influenza epidemics with their attendant danger.

Doctors have used and prescribed MU-COL for the past twenty years, and with wonderful results, particularly in acute and chronic catarrhal conditions of the mucous membranes of the nose and throat.

Get a bottle today! Keep it handy. Remember the name, MU-COL.

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

Try this! Brush Sage Tea and Sulphur Compound through your hair, taking one strand at a time.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is messy and troublesome. At little cost you can buy at any drug store, the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application of two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger.

ARE YOU LOSING "PEP"?

Do you feel tired all the time? Does your back ache? Do you feel so spry as you used to be? Middle-aged men and women often blame on coming old age for loss of ambition and energy when it is overwork or disordered kidneys that cause them to feel old before their time. Foley Kidney Pills tone up and invigorate the kidneys, banish backache, rid the blood of poisons. Rev. W. F. M. Swynole, Macon, Ga., writes: "I am ready any time to speak for Foley Kidney Pills." Sold everywhere.

Greens For Jaded Appetites

How welcome to your table will be some choice bit of green produce just now when you're beginning to tire of green produce just now when you're beginning to tire of the heavy meals that usually prevail at this time of the year.

The market now is sending out some choice tidbits and one or two added to your menu will be appreciated. Crisp radishes, firm head lettuce, new cabbage, crisp celery—these are some of the regulars—then there are the specialties that come along.

TRUST OF SCHOOLS JUMPS 500% IN NOV.

Multiplying Their Savings, Children Teach Parents.

2830 Philadelphia Kiddled, Twelve Years Old, Save $11,371.27 in November.

The lessons of waste and extravagance which men and women, whose wages were boosted far above their peacetime income by the sudden artificial prosperity, learned to their cost, are fast being unlearned by their children in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware schools.

In many homes parents are figuratively sitting at the feet of their children and receiving instruction in thrift, while the little tots learn in the schoolroom.

Thanks to the enthusiasm and tireless efforts of the teachers, the month of November shows an increase of 500 per cent in savings and investment in Thrift and Savings Stamps, over any previous month.

Many of these schools are already 100 per cent organized into the Government Savings Societies for the purpose of studying and practicing of saving. The study comes in regular lessons based on text books supplied by the Savings Division, Philadelphia. The practice consists in systematic buying of stamps through miniature banks in connection with each savings society in charge of a teacher.

Lycoming, Tioga, Cameron, Bucks, McKean and Centre Counties, in Pennsylvania, and Gloucester County in New Jersey, lead the Third Federal Reserve District in a 100 per cent enrollment of all their schools. The government realized substantial returns from the youthful bankers and concrete proof of this success is abundant. During November $308 pupils, members of Philadelphia Savings Societies, saved $11,371.27. It is to be remembered that this saving comes out of the tiny earnings and scant allowances of youngsters whose average age runs hardly above twelve years.

The reports from all the districts are splendid. A school in Carney's Point, N. J., with 108 pupils, saved $117.00 in stamps in November. One thousand nine hundred and fifty-five scholars, members of the War Savings Societies in schools of McKean County saved through stamps $1,823.95 in November and $2,010.31 to date. The Jersey Shore schools, with 1234 savers and depositors, saved $2,717.70 to date. These are only a few among many striking samples of real saving.

PATRIOTS' CREED TO CURE ECONOMIC ILLS

I believe in the United States of America.

My opportunity and hope depend upon her future.

I believe that her stability and progress rest upon the thrift and industry of her people.

Therefore I will work hard and live simply.

I will spend less than I earn.

I will use my earnings with care.

I will save consistently.

I will invest thoughtfully.

To increase the financial strength of my country and myself I will buy government securities.

I will hold above all other obligations my country thus incurs.

I will do these things to insure the greatness of America's future.

The $4.12 you put in a Savings Stamp this month will not only give you $5.00 in cash when it is redeemed by the government on January 1st, 1935, but the $5.00 then probably will buy nearly twice what it does now.

BASEBALL POW-WOWS ON IN WINDY CITY

Moguls to Select Commission Head, Make Schedules and Argue With Minors

CHICAGO, ILL., Feb. 10—(United Press)—Baseball doctors will put their fingers on the pulse of the sport and diagnose some of the ills of the national pastime at a series of important conferences starting here today.

Future of the diamond game depends to some extent upon the results of pow-wows between the major leagues, in individual and joint sessions, a meeting of the national commission and a conference with the minors.

Free of internal strife, the National league magnates have nothing on their schedule that promises red head-lines for the sport pages. There may be some differences on the award of "plum dates" on the 1920 schedule and they may not be unanimous in a choice for a new commission chairman but President John Heydler is confident of being able to steer his bark around any threatening rocks.

Of late, the American league meeting smells of brimstone. The two factions—the "faithful five" of Ban Johnson and the "rebellious three" probably will toe the mark with huge chips on each shoulder.

The barons of the younger circuit have a heavy card of business carried over from the December meeting in New York which ended in a row. In addition, they have the new schedule to consider. It's Ban Johnson's schedule and anything of Ban's is due for three "nay" votes, as affairs now exist in the league.

Selection of a chairman to take the post which Garry Herrman resigned is the ticklish task allotted to the national commission.

American league politics may stick its pugnaious fist into this session if Henry J. Killilea is a candidate. The Boston-Chicago-New York clan of insurgents will lobby against his choice on the grounds that he is a Johnson henchman and that his appointment would not loosen the grip that Johnson had on the commission through his lieutenant, the Red Chieftan.

National league magnates are said to favor anyone who knows baseball and who hasn't a financial string on any club in either league. Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, local jurist and fan, has been spoken of for more than a year and while he has the support of the National league he is said to be opposed by Johnson. Other candidates who have been in print since Herrman pronounced his intention of giving up the scepter are "Big Bill" Edwards, John B. Foster and Senator James H. Walker, of New York, sponsor of the new boxing bill in the Empire state.

The conference with the minors is last but not least on the schedule. With common agreement on only a few points, the moguls face the task of drawing up a new agreement that meets with the approval of both factions.

One of the demands of the minors, which may meet with disapproval, is for representation on the national commission. New provisions for the draft and other important measures are to be considered also.

HOPPE-PETERSON BILLIARD MATCH ATTRACTING A LOT OF ATTENTION

These Two Champions Will Give Clearfield Followers of The Cushion Games A Great Exhibition

The class of a sport is judged by the ability and personality of its leaders.

What would baseball be without its Ty Cobbs, Babe Ruths, Walter Johnsons, Tris Speakers, Larry Lajoies and other notables?

What would boxing be without its bane have kept the featherweights in front.

In billiards an active champion must be on top. Personality, as well as ability, is essential. For the first time on record, billiards now boasts of three leaders having all the necessary qualifications.

WILLIAM F. HOPPE, CHAMPION OF THE WORLD.

Benny Leonard, Johnny Kilbane and Jack Dempsey?

It takes an active champion to keep a sport active and alive. Facts prove this only too clearly.

Without a Hoppe on the throne, where would the billiard game stand? Hoppe—the Hoppe personality and the Hoppe game—has made billiards rate high.

Connie Mack's Athletics failed as a gate attraction because it was too much machine, too little color. Individuality in play, regardless of the branch of sport, is what the fans demand and what they must have.

The lightweight division in boxing, always a popular section, almost passed out under the colorless and unpopular reign of Freddy Welsh. Penny Leonard has been the lifesaver. Abe Attell and Johnny Kil-

IN the series of Thor Washing Machine advertisements which we have been running in this paper recently we have told you of the EFFICIENCY of the machine; the money you can SAVE each year by owning one and the fact that it is a real INVESTMENT.

WE have outlined the EASY PAYMENT PLAN whereby You Can Own One by paying $10.00 down and the balance in easy monthly payments.

Now if you wish us to have an expert show you in your own home just how swiftly a Thor will dissolve your wash-day troubles as well as dissolve the dirt in your clothes, you must let us know at once.

REACH for your telephone! Do it now because the experts who have been here showing scores of housewives what a Real Washing Machine can do, will leave soon.

WHY THE THOR IS THE SUPREME MACHINE

It has the all-metal, full-swinging wringer, which cannot be operated until locked in position. It is built to wear and will last a lifetime. It is unqualifiedly guaranteed by the Hurley Machine Company, the largest manufacturer of washing machines in the world. It is a cylinder machine and every laundryman in this country will tell you that he uses cylinder machines and that they are the only practical thing. It washes clothes clean—absolutely clean—without tearing or otherwise damaging them. A great, White Maple cylinder does the work.

The Thor has a full-length gas-burner that boils your clothes while they are being washed. This insures spotlessly white and sterilized garments. Electric current and gas for operation costs approximately three cents per hour. There are no belts to break or catch the clothes of the operator; steel shafts and gears all enclosed ensure safety first and make it foolproof. The Thor has stood the test of fourteen years' service and today is used in more than 600,000 American homes. Good Housekeeping Institute unqualifiedly endorses the Thor.

COMMITTEE OF THREE RAILROAD MEN WILL DISCUSS DEMANDS WITH PRESIDENT

WILSON EXPECTED TO MAKE FRANK AND FINAL REPLY TO BROTHERHOODS

JEWELL OF FEDERATION, MANION OF TELE-
GRAPHERS, AND SHEA OF ENGINEERS
AND FIREMEN ARE TRIO

M. OF W. MEN FIRM FOR STRIKE

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Bert M. Jewell, head of the American Federation of Labor Railroad Department today was named chairman of the committee of three to meet President Wilson. The other members are J. E. Manion of the Railroad Telegraphers and Timothy Shea, head of the Firemen and Enginemen.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—President Wilson will meet a delegation of three railroad union officials at 10:30 tomorrow morning it was announced at the White House today. It is expected that the President at that time will give the railroad workers the answer to their demands for an immediate wage increase which they have been pressing in negotiations with Rail Director Hines. These negotiations have been in progress since February 3. The three members of the delegation will be selected from representatives of the fourteen brotherhood unions. They will see the President as he sits in his chair in the White House garden.

Putting the fact squarely up to Wilson will not cause the cancellation of the strike order effective Tuesday when 300,000 members of the Union Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way employees walk out, Vice President Malloy said today. "The only thing that will avert the strike is the granting of our demands," said Malloy. Malloy said that a letter had been drafted to Hines by the sub-committee of his union yesterday. The letter is intended to give Hines one more chance to meet the demands of the workers, Malloy said.

President Wilson will find it difficult to grant the demands of the unions, officials predicted today. They declare that President Wilson is no more likely to authorize the increases than was Hines who maintains that such action would be unfair in view of the fact that the owners will take back the railroads March 1st.

William G. Lee, of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen telegraphed Rail Director Hines this morning and asked for a conference. Lee has given Hines another notice that his union wishes to terminate its present contract, February 23d.

Feed was placed at several points and the birds went to work on same very promptly.

Game Protector Davis also took a quantity of feed out to a flock of quail in the upper end of Lawrence township.

ANNUAL MEETING OF FARM BUREAU IS ANNOUNCED

An invitation is extended to all farmers and others interested in agriculture in Clearfield county to attend the annual meeting of the farm bureau to be held Friday, February 20, 1920. There will be morning and afternoon sessions both of which will be held in the court house. The county agent desires a full attendance at this meeting at which time plans for the work to be taken up this year should be discussed.

The following program has been arranged for this meeting:

10:30 Meeting called to order by the President.

Reading of the minutes of last annual meeting by the secretary.

Report of the treasurer.

Report of the president.

Report of activities of the Clearfield county cooperative association by Harrison Straw.

Nomination and election of officers.

Noon recess.

1:30 "Marketing Problems," Guy B. Smith, chief of state bureau of market, Harrisburg, Pa.

County agent's report and plans for the year, W. D. Sterrett.

Discussion of work this year by farm bureau members.

Adjournment.

The farm bureau officials would like to have you speak to your neighbors concerning this annual meeting, and urge them to attend. We feel that a good program has been arranged and that the discussions of the day will be well worth the time of any farmer who can arrange to be present.

CENTRAL PENNSYLVANIA BANKERS IN SESSION

Group Six of the Pennsylvania Bankers' Association met in Altoona today and some twenty or twenty-five Clearfield bankers were in attendance at the sessions.

Among other things discussed and displayed on this occasion when the crowd got together was a discourse on the care and treatment of the robust ever-blooming "interest plant," how to combat the deadly "red ink balance," means to overcome the "over-draft" weevil and the best method of keeping tab on "unhealthy accounts."

A local expert delivered a carefully worded talk on "The best and most painless way in which to turn down a borrower when the indorsee himself didn't want it to get by." The boys enjoyed their instructive "day off" to the limit.

WOODLAND REVIVAL PROGRESSING

The meeting in the Woodland United Brethren church is progressing finely. There have been nine at the altar so far. Attendance is good and interest is increasing. There has been some sickness among the people which has hindered the work. The choir has been hard hit. Mrs. N. G. Stewart, Mrs. V. G. Henderson, Miss Mable Albert, Mr. J. V. Knepp and Mrs. J. J. Lenz are all members of the choir, and are confined at home by sickness. The pastor has a case of sore throat and will not be able to preach for a few nights. Rev. W. A. Wissinger, pastor of the Clearfield U. B. church, will preach in the interim. Those spared will keep the work moving, get right with the Lord and support the agencies of salvation by their prayers.

Mrs. William Bush has returned from Williamsport, where she visited her daughter Vera, who is a student at Dickinson College.

GREAT BRITAIN FACE TO FACE WITH GOVERNMENT BY LABOR

Old Parties Appear To Lack Vitality and Leadership and Change Seems Imminent

By PERY M. SARRL
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, (By Mail).—"How would the accession to power of a labor government, in Great Britain affect us?" is a question which the United States should be considering now. For the day of its realization is not far off, according to every expert sounder of public opinion here.

"The Fitness of Labor to Govern" is past the academic debating society stage in this country, and it is now a burning question in British political life. Moreover, it is being studied in every phase by those who will decide the matter—the voters of Great Britain. At the moment there is a distinct "Give them a chance" feeling throughout the country, as evidenced by every by-election since the general election of December, 1918, when the present coalition government was returned.

The Lloyd George coalition, composed, ironically enough, mainly of his former political foes, the Conservatives or Unionists, was elected by an overwhelming majority as a result of the national relief over the cessation of hostilities. They were able to go to the elections and say "We have won the war, let us win the peace" and the result was an inevitable "vote of thanks."

But the delays of the Paris peace conference, the realization that the end of the war did not mean a return to pre-war conditions, and the long continuance of war-time controls, restrictions, taxation and heavy expenditure, together with a further increase in the cost of living, demobilization, unemployment and housing problems, inevitably caused a reaction. Coalitions are not popular in Britain, but the war-bred combination of the modern men of the two great political parties—labor was offered a place, but refused and practically excommunicated the few leaders of their party who remained with the government—has disclosed the fact that there is only one great political leader in the country—Premier David Lloyd George.

Lloyd George, the "Little Welsh Wizard" is a magnetic personality, but he is a man without a party at the moment. Formerly an advanced Liberal, he has alienated most of his former partisans by his concessions to the Conservatives, who form the great majority of his coalition, while the latter ungratefully enough resent every concession to his Liberalism and feel that they are holding the bag for a political foe.

However, Andrew Bonar Law, Conservative leader, who loyally sticks to his job as second in command to Lloyd George, evinces no disposition to branch out as an independent leader and the Conservatives have no outstanding figure with whom to replace him. Equally, the anti-Lloyd George Liberals have no outstanding leader, for Herbert H. Asquith, ex-premier, who rallied the dissident Liberals, is now a dead-letter, staid personality. Hence the politician who wants to get back to party politics does not know which way to turn.

It is against labor that they also have no outstanding leader, and are apparently not too sure in which direction they wish to be led, but Horatio Bottomley, the well-known Independent Liberal publicist, says in his newspaper, JOHN BULL, the cry of "Open your mouth and shut your eyes and see what Lloyd George will give you" is no longer good enough for Mr. Man-in-the-Street and Mrs. Woman-in-the-Home. Labor has gained so much during the past twelve months, in the way of wage increases—even if they do not do much more than keep pace with advancing prices—that the average voter naturally says "They might do something for me." Lloyd George's fiery Celtic imagination and sym-phy—his political opponents call it plain "vote-catching opportunism"—has therefore done little but alienate former supporters who realize that there are limits beyond which even his temperamental viewpoint will not go.

The one thing that will defeat labor in the next election is a scare-mongering, anti-revolutionary slogan launched by a man like Lloyd George who can combine the moderates of all parties. Such an election platform would probably sweep the country, just as did Lloyd George's "Make the Germans pay," "Bridge the war criminals to justice" swept the country in the post-war general election of 1918. But if the moderates can only keep the revolutionaries in check, labor will win the next election.

At present nearly all the responsible labor leaders may be numbered among the moderates. Robert Smillie, the miners' leader; Frank Hodges, his lieutenant; Robert Williams, transport workers' leader, and Charles T. Cramp, who is rapidly ousting J. H. Thomas as the railwaymen's leader, (to mention the three great union leaders) are frankly revolutionary, but they do not get elected to parliament. Ironically enough their own followers seem to vote them down when they are put up for parliament.

If a labor government were returned within the next twelve months, Arthur Henderson would almost certainly be Premier. He does not entirely satisfy either the "reds" or the moderates, so should be a fairly satisfactory leader. And the man from whom he would have to choose his cabinet are practically all moderates. The press has recently been selecting possible labor cabinets, including J. B. Clynnes, William Bruce, James O'Grady, G. J. Wardie, Stephen Walsh, Ben C. Spoor, W. E. Smith, G. H. Roberts, J. H. Thomas, Ben Tillett, James Hodge, G. H. Stuart-Bunning, George N. Barnes, Vernon Hartshorn, C. B. Stanton and James Sexton. All these are experienced trade union officials who should make excellent administrators.

Two leading laborites not yet mentioned are J. Ramsey MacDonald and Philip Snowden. They are of the intellectual revolutionary type. Both were decisively defeated at the last election, but may secure re-election later, and in a moderate cabinet might do good work without being dangerous. It is an open secret that Ramsey MacDonald has slated himself for the foreign or colonial office, while Snowden has his eye on the job of chancellor of exchequer.

Labor, however, does not pretend to understand the socialism of statesmen like Clemenceau, Briand and others. A labor government here would probably lead to a weakening of the entente cordiale and to a gradual estrangement from Italy, which is now regarded by "reds" here as a stronghold of militarism. Countries like Spain would probably be more or less ignored, unless a British labor cabinet was embroiled with the Madrid government through unwisdom support of the Barcelona extremists. The United States and South America, three thousand miles or more distant, would not receive much attention, and this would be likely to lead to continual diplomatic friction.

Such is the only conclusion that can be drawn from the records and utterances of British Labor statesmen. The big men who might be capable and desirous of carrying on foreign policy or orthodox lines would most likely find themselves drawn into all sorts of petty domestic squabbles, which ought to be handled by subordinates. The permanent officials of the foreign, colonial and trade departments might be able to carry on, but every indication is that they would be cramped by the supervi-

Supreme Council In Session At London

Refusal Of Germany To Turn Over War Criminals For Trial Is Main Topic

HUNS FALL DOWN ON PROMISES

LONDON, Feb. 11.—London today has replaced Paris as the seat of deliberations to settle problems growing out of the world war. The Big Three is in session to decide the future Allied attitude toward Russia, the settlement of the Adriatic dispute between Italy and Jugo-Slavia, the position of Constantinople, measures to force Germany to live up to Article 228 of the Treaty of Versailles and the League of Nations meeting to bring about the organization of the new society. London has become the moment virtually the capital of Europe.

One of the first questions to be brought up will be Germany's refusal to deliver the war guilty for trial before the Allied tribunals as demanded, and the delay on Germany's part in delivering coal to France as provided for in the treaty. Germany is ready is far behind in these deliveries, French officials have complained.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY WARNS AGAINST USE OF CARNIVAL GAMBLING DEVICES

It is desired to give notice that the practice of maintaining and operating gambling devices at Carnivals, Fairs and other places is a direct violation of the law.

It has been the custom for persons desiring to make a living by means of such violations to give a small proportion of the fruits of their crime to some worthy object—with the evident purpose of discouraging criminal prosecutions. This will not avail. This method of earning a livelihood by enticing and procuring money from boys, girls and all other persons is as reprehensible as it is unlawful and it is not made any the less so by acts of alleged charity paid for from their spoils.

We may add that an examination of the records of our criminal court for the past two years, show that the carnivals have left in their wake a train of runaway children, ruined girls and depraved boys, forgery, thievery, burglary and even murder. All of which tends to prove a well known principle of criminology: that criminal practices permitted and encouraged inevitably breed a host of deeper and more violent crimes.

SENATE HEARS LINCOLN ADDRESS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—The Senate today adjourned as a mark of respect to the memory of Abraham Lincoln. Adjournment followed the reading of Lincoln's Gettysburg address by Senator Keyes of New Hampshire. He read from the original manuscript in Lincoln's writing and which has been in the possession of the Keyes family many years.

NEW INTERIOR SECRETARY NAMED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—John Barton Payne today was named Secretary of the Interior. Lane's resignation becomes effective March 1.

KAISER OBJECTS TO OFFER OF SOOT

BERLIN, Feb. 11.—Delayed—The former Kaiser has forbidden his son, the former Crown Prince, to surrender himself to the Allies and has requested the Dutch government to prevent such procedure, the Dutch Krassel said today.

of an earnest reformer who would attempt to put down "officialdom" on bureaucratic lines.

The most disturbing feature about British labor is the inclination of the rank and file to follow extremists' advice and throw over their tried and trusted moderate leaders. If the moderates can keep control, there is every chance of the next election turning a labor government out of the extremes power, which might happen. In the last year or election would be fought on labor clear-war issues, whereas the earlier parties would raise the banner of bolshevism, possibly with station on, as regards the maintenance of order.

ENFORCEMENT OR PERSECUTION—WHICH?

Administration of the prohibition law in this district is apparently for the purpose of making prohibition as odious as possible, at least that is the effect from the manner in which the prohibition is being handled. The attitude of numerous federal officers is too well known to be commented upon further. It will be recalled that it was the liquor interests who insisted that search and seizure clauses be inserted in the prohibition law. When it became a certainty that booze was to be outlawed they sought to work as many hardships as possible in the hope that public sentiment would demand a return of liquor in preference to fanatical enforcement of the law. The prohibition law provides for the dispensing of all the alcohol necessary for medicinal purposes in the ordinary practice of medicine and to take care of emergencies but the administration of the law or lack of administration is having the opposite effect.

There is a flu epidemic in Clearfield today. Not one prescription druggist in Clearfield has an ounce of alcohol for the preparation of the physician's prescriptions. There are thousands of barrels of alcohol on the market. In many cases it has been bought and paid for by the local druggists but the necessary blanks to be filled out and sent to the enforcement officer of this district have not been given attention and the wholesale drug houses are not permitted to ship the alcohol until they receive the necessary government release document.

The fault is not with the law but rather the administration of the law.

WHAT WOULD LINCOLN SAY TODAY?

Extract from speech by Will H. Hays
Lincoln Day Republican Meeting today at St. Louis
What would Lincoln say today? Presumptuous as it might seem to assume to answer the question, surely no harm can come from asking it. Could we in fact do better than pause occasionally in the present turmoil of existence and seek guidance from the great minds whose still living words have never failed to point the paths which invariably have proved to be the true ones? And was there ever before a time when thought upon what Lincoln would or even might think, say and do could have been more helpful or more inspiring than now?

Recognition of Lincoln's true greatness has grown steadily since he died a martyr to the great cause, but none can fail to realize that during the past few years it has been enhanced mightily throughout the world. "There goes the spirit of Lincoln at the head," ejaculated the Premier of England when he saw the advance guard of American soldiers sweeping forward over Flanders fields. And when the awful carnage ceased the foremost of living philosophers, gazing apprehensively into the troubled future, murmured despairingly, "What Europe needs now is a Lincoln."

Truer words were never spoken. Who else in all history was so well equipped as he to raise a great continent, even as a mere Phoenix, from the ashes of calamity? And why? Because of his fame? No. In that respect he had been surpassed by many. Because of his superior achievements in war or in peace? No. Because of the faith that men had in him while he lived and have in him still in vastly greater measure these long years since he passed away.

To say this is to say much but not too much of him whom we proudly acclaim and who now is universally conceded the truest type of the truest American ever sprung from American soil.

If an Abraham Lincoln were and still may be the chief need of Europe how much more surely should he be the guiding star of his own native land, the only land he ever knew, the only land he ever loved except as his great heart was filled with loving kindness for all mankind. We have not the man, but we have his spirit; we have his faith; we have his words:

"History is the voice of God sounding across the centuries the laws of right and wrong."

"Eternal right makes right. As we understand our duty let us do it."

Let us stop there. Let that be the message that we believe Lincoln would bring to us tonight, venturing only to add what he almost surely would say in simple phrase:—And don't get discouraged. There is no problem Americans cannot solve. There never has been. There never will be. Look forward, not backward. Look up, not down. God will do the rest, not for America only, but through America, for the world.

FROM THE BOX OFFICE POINT OF VIEW

By their patronage of the theatre Clearfield people register their desire at the box office. Running a theatre is a business enterprise and the manager of the Clearfield theatre cannot be expected to book high grade operas when they are not patronized. This season we have seen two or three very fine shows at the local theatre but the attendance was small which, we were told caused the theatre manager to cancel other good ones because he could not make the guarantee required by the company. We are told that other headliners themselves cancelled when they heard how poorly the high class attractions had been patronized. Last evening a third rate company with a fourth rate vehicle visited Clearfield and played to a crowded house. The manager of the theatre is therefore justified in booking such attractions. The theatre goes have indicated their taste and it is up to the manager to give them what they want. Do not blame the theatre for the rotten shows. If you patronize the good shows he will give them to you just as well. Of course the matter of seat prices have a great deal to do with attendance. A dollar show will get a crowd and we will be in that crowd. We are in that class but if we cannot get good shows for a dollar would it not be better to get six headliners during the season than to get sixteen rotten and spots. It will be no loss to the theatre. The photo play will fill the void. What do you want in the show line, Clearfielders? It is up to you to show by your patronage.

WHAT THE TOWN HAS WAITED FOR

With one bold stroke of his pen District Attorney Arnold has affixed his signature to a warning that gambling devices such as those used at carnivals will not be permitted in Clearfield County and by his act has raised Clearfield County another notch in the good opinion of neighboring counties. The use of these devices is and has been a clear violation of the laws of our state but because of interlocking interests officials of the law have been disposed to keep in the distance while those blood suckers who prey on the young and the foolish plied their nefarious trade under the very dome of the temple of justice and in the shadow of the stone and wood structures dedicated to the furtherance of the gospel of Him who drove the money changers from the holy temple of worship. No one can have any respect for the type of gambler who stoops to the paddle wheel and the marked square. Along side of him the poker player who meets his adversary or skill is a prince.

The action of the District Attorney will not debar good shows and carnivals from coming here. On the contrary it will be an invitation to the round tent operators to send a good bangup aggregation of attractions here which will amuse instruct and entertain us without resorting to methods little short of daylight robbery. The action is certain to have a good influence on our county fair. The midway at the fair has not been what it ought to be. The warning of the prosecuting attorney will prevent the return here of the riff-raff which gained admittance to our beautiful fair grounds last year and the year before. In its place we may expect to see something worth while.

On behalf of our readers, we congratulate District Attorney Arnold for having the courage to take this stand in ridding the county of these crime breeding traveling circuses which are merely traveling gambling houses with a few shows for bait.

Words.

"And now," concluded the super orator, as he bowed to the frenzied applause of the common people, "I have made my point clear to this intelligent audience. I will feel that I have failed of my purpose. However, the greatest of mortals is prone to err, so, in justice to the great issue at stake, I trust that anyone who understands what the League of Nations really is will ask such questions as will enable me to obscure such parts of it as may be clear to you now."

"Silence. . . . More silence. . . . And then some."

"Ah! Your silence is flattering. Indeed, if you will now dispense with shaking my hand, I will bid you adieu, as I must save my energy for the speech I am to deliver tomorrow before the former munition makers on 'How to Combat the High Cost of Living.'—Life.

European Tarantula.

An eminent authority in such matters, in remarking that the tarantula is a spider, says, "of that terrifying creature that it is the Lycosa Tarantula, a species of spider found in some of the warmer parts of Italy and Spain. When full grown it is about the size of a chestnut and of a brown color. Its bite was at one time supposed to be dangerous and to induce a kind of 'dancing disease,' but now it is known not to be worse than the sting of a common wasp."

It is an old fable, extending to remotest times, that the bite of this spider would produce epilepsy or a strange dancing mania in its victims and that this epilepsy or madness could be relieved only by a particular kind of music. The tarantula of Italy and Spain—and it is found in those countries today—has hairy legs with black markings on them.

America's Debt to Jews.

Jews figured very prominently in the discovery of America by Columbus according to Rabbi David Philipson of Cincinnati. The first man who stepped on the shore of the new world was the interpreter of the expedition, Luis de Torres, a Jew. Bernal, the ship surgeon, was also a Jew, as were several members of the crew.

It is also now said to be established that the long-credited belief that Queen

Isabella pawned her jewels to furnish Columbus with the funds for the trip is a legend. These funds, it is said, were furnished by two Jews, Luis de Santangel and Gabriel Sanchez. A letter by Columbus to Sanchez is still extant, in which he gives some account of his exploits.

Who Knows?

A friend of mine called upon a newly wedded pair and I happened to drop in. The bride had been a widow. My friend remarked to me, "You introduced them to each other, didn't you?" "Why, yes," I foolishly blurted out. "I introduced her to her first and second husbands and who knows but what I'll be the one to introduce her to her third one?"—Exchange.

Approaching the End.

Cleopatra in dialogue entitled "De Senectute" makes one of his interlocutors say that all men wish to attain old age and yet complain of the fact when they have attained it. He adds that one of the grievances of the old is that age steals over them more rapidly than they expected. It is pointed out that we cannot prevent time from passing, and that even if we lived eight hundred instead of eighty years the past time, however long, cannot when it has flown away be able to "smother with any consolation for an old age of folly."

A Sister Wilhelm Did Not Like.

Princess Charlotte of Meiningen, sister of the ex-kaiser, who died recently, had been a sufferer for years and had undergone many operations. She passed most of her time on the Riviera. Indeed, the princess was a woman you couldn't miss. She wore bobbed hair, when no other woman had ever dreamed of such a thing, and talked democracy, and smoked all the time. The ex-kaiser was rather alarmed at her vagaries and preferred his other sister, Queen Sophie of Greece, who is more his sort.—London Mail.

Largest Movie House.

New York has in building a moving picture theater with a seating capacity of 5,500, which may constitute it the largest of its kind anywhere. Judging by the heavy patronage in other such places, the new house may be filled at the chief performances. The public is seeking professional entertainment as never before.

CHECKERS

By Henry M. Blossom

Tense with life action and abounding thrills, "CHECKERS" comes tonight with the reputation of being the most thrilling play on Broadway, and picturized, it is doubly exciting, with thoroughbred and high life intermingled with a basic drama of the human emotions. It cost $320,000, and was more than three months in the making. The racing scenes were made at famous Belmont park track—in one of the big scenes a burning freight train plunges thru an open drawbridge! It's a big production presented in a big way! A KINDLY FRESHET

By T. B. ALDERSON

(Copyright, 1919, Western Newspaper Union)
Jabez Arnold had closed his general store at 10 o'clock as was usually his custom. The group of evening loungers had departed, the front door was locked, but he made no move to proceed up stairs where he lived with his family. His son and helper, Gregory, yawned wearily.

"Going to wait?" he inquired.
"Yes, this is Thursday night, you know."

"That's so—Morton Bridges?"
The father nodded assentingly. The son dozed in his chair. He was aroused by a sharp tap at the rear door.

"Make yourself scarce," spoke the father. "Bridges don't like to have anybody around when he comes after his weekly supplies," and old Jabez proceeded to the rear door.

He opened it to disclose a man of perhaps thirty, although his trampish attire and neglected beard made him look ten years older.

"It's you Bridges, is it?" propounded Jabez, but his visitor simply nodded an assent that was wordless. The storekeeper accepted a written sheet of paper which the visitor had placed on the counter with two capacious baskets. He stood like a statue until Jabez had filled the long written order, packed the articles and figured up their price. Bridges paid his bill and left the place as silently as he had come.

For two years, every Thursday of the week Morton Bridges, hermit, had gone through this same unvaried performance. Hot or cold, rain or snow, he had never missed that weekly visit to the store. No one had ever been present there except Jabez, only a few of the villagers had seen that ghost-like figure slip into the town.

Morton Bridges was a promising young business man when he fell in love with Naomi Brill. For six months they were seen together, then all of a sudden because of a trivial lover's quarrel there was a separation. The local newspaper one day announced the prospective marriage of Miss Brill to one Bradley Wayne. The next day Morton Bridges sold out his business and disappeared.

It was some time before his friends learned of his whereabouts. Then a man who had been hunting for the coming across the fugitive, the exile on Waverly Island, a small body of land situated in the middle of a branch of the turbulent Black river. The discoverer of the missing man had hailed Bridges at a distance, but the latter had made no acknowledgment of the greeting and had disappeared within a small lighted structure, but where he had isolated himself. Bridges had shut himself off from the world completely. His only contact with it was when he visited the store of Jabez Arnold to purchase household necessities to add to his rather restricted menu of fish and game.

It was destined, however, that this regular system was to be disturbed. He did not appear at the general store the Thursday following that just described. Again Jabez Arnold and his son sat up to meet him. They even remained on duty an hour beyond the prescribed time. Then sleepy-headed Gregory crossly suggested that they had done their full duty.

"Yes," acquiesced the father. "It's the floods, Gregory. They say the Black river is in a roaring torrent, and the island pretty near out of sight."

This was not literally true, but the sweeping waters, fed by a period of phenomenal rains, the daily encroachment upon the island had made it dangerous for Bridges to leave the lonely spot he called home. Then came the climax. The water had for some days flooded the lower part of the hut, and he had been forced to cook his meals on a high spot beyond the sight of the cabin. Nights, however, he slept in a sort of garret space formed by the roof rafters of his circumscribed dwelling. He awoke one night with the shock of a jar. He lifted himself on the rude mattress across the rafters.

"Afloat!" he commented, peering through a break in the roof. With incredible rapidity the frail hut was being borne along the swollen stream. Darkness and devastation surrounded him. The framework was holding together stanchly, although at times it was whirled about in the maelstrom rush and havoc like a feather in a whirlpool.

Bridges enlarged the hole in the roof so as to be ready to trust to his powers of swimming if collapse came. Hours ensued, miles were covered. He was lulled somewhat because outside of frequent collisions with other floating objects, no real disaster resulted. Half-asleep finally, he was conscious of the hut being tossed up and forward. It collapsed and, driven senseless, he lay on dry land, amid its ruins.

It was broad daylight and the sun was shining down on his face as he recovered sensibility. A woman stood over him.

"Morton Bridges?" she spoke in a bewildered gasp. "How came you here? I must run and tell my niece, Naomi. She has been living with me since her mother died."

"Naomi?" repeated Bridges vaguely. "You mean Mrs. Bradley Wayne?"

"What gave you that idea?" Naomi is not married. Did some one make you think so? Is that why you disappeared? Oh, she will be glad to see you."

She was—so glad that, after a mutual explanation, Morton Bridges proceeded to get back to civilization—and love.

UP GOES COFFEE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12. (United Press).—Visions of further increased prices in coffee faces the public following the statement that coffee imports in 1919 doubled in value as compared with 1918, though there was but a slight increase in quantity.

A blighted coffee crop in Brazil, prohibition and a strenuous coffee advertising campaign are blamed for the jump, which will have to be met by every American household.

According to Department of Commerce figures 1,235,532,102 pounds of coffee were imported by the United States at a cost of $239,400,798. This is more than double what was paid for the 1,215,288,752 pounds imported in 1917. In 1918, 998,516,598 pounds were imported at a cost of $92,529,306.

Prices are still rising according to latest monthly statistics. In November 108 million pounds were imported at a cost of $25,321,726. October figures showed coffee imported amounted a 102 million pounds, valued at $24,445,458.

Bud Fisher's famous characters in the flesh drew the biggest crowd of its history to the Driggs theatre last evening. The "S. R. O." sign going up before 8:00, while many were turned away unable even to get standing room. The crowd was fine. The show was not so well.

What Becomes of Waste Paper?

(National Crop Improvement Service.)
THE price of waste paper never was so high as at present and yet a very large percentage of it is burned every day. The newspapers are cutting down their editions as a result of a shortage of print paper. This is not because there is less print paper but because the demand has grown so enormous that the mills are overtaxed.

The margin on papers of all kinds has been so small that capital has not been attracted to this field, but the prices are now at a point where new machinery may be installed at a profit.

"Waste paper should not be left loose for several reasons: First, it is a dangerous fire risk and, second, it occupies too much space. Some systematic way should be made in every department store and in every neighborhood to gather the paper day by day. There has been so little profit in it in the past that most people have preferred to burn up their paper," says Mr. Frank Baackes, American Steel & Wire Company. "Paper cannot be handled in small lots to advantage and the price increases with the amount available at any one point."

"If it is baled, as it should be, and stored, it will bring from $15 to $25 a ton, to which must be added the expense and dealer's profit for gathering the paper, sorting it and shipping it to the mills."

"There are a few large newspapers like the Chicago Tribune, the New York Times, which have their own paper mills, but they cannot use a very large proportion of the paper which has been printed, as the stock must go into making books and other cheaper forms of paper."

"It may be said that there is no money enough to make a business of it, but I know a colored man in Chicago who, being out of a job, went around the neighborhood and picked up paper and made $2.00 the first day and he says now that when he is out of a job he can make $7 or $8 a day with a one-horse wagon can make $25 to $30 a day."

"It would seem, therefore, that if this business were systematically handled, that a great conservation could be made. The baling of paper is very much like the baling of straw or hay and for the same reason should have a very good quality of bale ties because the stuff is heavy and a broken bale will waste a lot of money."

"We, Americans, waste a great deal of the things on which pennies make a fine profit."

Hot Water Each Morning Puts Roses in Your Cheeks

To look one's best and feel one's best is to enjoy an inside bath each morning to flush from the system the previous day's waste, sour fermentations and poisonous toxins before it is absorbed into the blood. Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of combustible material in the form of ash, so the food and drink taken each day leave in the alimentary tract a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not eliminated forms toxins and poisons which are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which are intended to suck in only nourishment to sustain the body.

If you want to see the glow of healthy bloom in your cheeks, to see your skin clear and clearer, you are told to drink every morning upon arising, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless means of washing the waste material and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.

Girls and women with sallow skins, liver spots, pimples or pallid complexion, also those who wake up with a coated tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, others who are bothered with headaches, bilious spells, acid stomachs or constipation should begin this phosphate treatment. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store, but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, purifies and freshens the skin on the outside, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the inside organs. We must always consider that internal sanitation is vastly more important than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do.

Women who desire to enhance the beauty of their complexion should just try this for a week and notice results.

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS CURWENSVILLE

Mrs. H. J. Kittelberger received a telegram yesterday announcing the death of her mother, which occurred in Pittsburgh the evening previous, of pneumonia. Her age was 76 years. Her remains were taken to Hubbersburg, Pa., for burial. Mrs. Kittelberger being unable to attend the funeral on account of herself being ill, as well as two of her children.

V. H. Reed, of Ridge avenue, was summoned to Cambria county on Tuesday on receipt of a telegram announcing the death of a brother, Herbert Reed. Deceased was a son of Jordan Reed, and was born and raised on a farm in Lawrence township. He was a brother of Miss Clara Reed, also of Curwensville.

Express Agent W. A. Thompson was notified yesterday to cease all shipments for New York City, owing to the conditions of the city, goods could not be handled and delivered to parties to whom they were addressed.

Mrs. Howard Crownover was brought home from Clearfield Hospital Tuesday evening, her condition, after suffering in operation, being greatly improved.

John Myers, who suffered considerably for several days from hicough, and whose condition was pronounced dangerous, we are pleased to state is now in a fair way to complete recovery, his struggle with that peculiar ailment having been overcome, but leaving him in a weakened physical condition.

Melinda Abrino is lying very ill at the home of his mother in Nantua, and little hope is entertained for his recovery.

A meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held at the home of Mrs. Fannie Daub, on Ridge avenue on Friday evening. All members are earnestly requested to be present.

The Senior Class of the High School are enjoying themselves this evening by holding a social in Grange hall.

The C. E. Society of the Presbyterian church, held a Valentine Social last evening, in which a large number of young folks participated and enjoyed themselves greatly.

The mines in this vicinity are working on an average of about 70 per cent. of their output. Shortage of cars is said to be the cause. Car shortage not only applies to mines but to all other industries hereabouts.

Following the Red Cross roll call membership drive in November, 1919, Curwensville is credited with having 432 members and club contribution of $632, a dollar per member.

The funeral of Mrs. Charles Smith will be held from the home on Susquehanna avenue, South Side, on Friday afternoon, at 2 o'clock. Rev. Mr. Biddle, of the M. E. church, will be the minister in charge. Interment in Oak Hill cemetery.

Miss Ruth Young, a daughter of Samuel and Marjorie Welsh Young, died at the home of her parents on South Side, Tuesday afternoon about 5 o'clock, from pneumonia, after a short illness. She was employed as a telephone operator at the Crescent Refractories Company's office. Her age was 33 years. She is survived by her father and mother, three brothers and three sisters, viz: Harry, residing at Newberry; Charles and Fred, of Curwensville; Mrs. A. C. Becker, of DuBois; Mrs. William Reiner, of Oil City, and Miss Ada, at home. Deceased had many warm friends in Curwensville, who deeply sympathize with the bereaved family in their loss. Her funeral was held this afternoon from her home.

KEEP TONSILS CLEAN

Avoid Colds, Catarrh, Sore Throat By Using MU-COL

The tonsils should be systematically cleaned each day, says authority. Infected tonsils cause mouth-breathing, enlarged neck glands, frequent sore throat and tonsillitis; bad breath and oftentimes deafness.

Excellent results have been obtained from the use of MU-COL, a pleasant antiseptic powder from which warm solutions can readily be made and used at body temperature.

A cleansing gargle with MU-COL solution each night and morning is of great service. At the same time the solution should be sniffed up from the palm of the hand, or a nasal douche can be used with good effect to clean out the nasal cavity.

Carry out this treatment each day and you need not fear colds and influenza epidemics with their attendant danger.

Doctors have used and prescribed MU-COL for the past twenty years, and with wonderful results, particularly in acute and chronic catarrhal conditions of the mucous membranes of the nose and throat.

Get a bottle today! Keep it handy. Remember the name, MU-COL.

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

Try this! Brush Sage Tea and Sulphur Compound through your hair, taking one strand at a time.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is messy and troublesome. At little cost you can buy at any drug store, the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application of two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger.

ARE YOU LOSING "PEP"?

Do you feel tired all the time? Does your back ache? Do you feel so spry as you used to be? Middle-aged men and women often blame on coming old age for loss of ambition and energy when it is overwork or disordered kidneys that cause them to feel old before their time. Foley Kidney Pills tone up and invigorate the kidneys, banish backache, rid the blood of poisons. Rev. W. F. M. Swynole, Macon, Ga., writes: "I am ready any time to speak for Foley Kidney Pills." Sold everywhere.

Greens For Jaded Appetites

How welcome to your table will be some choice bit of green produce just now when you're beginning to tire of green produce just now when you're beginning to tire of the heavy meals that usually prevail at this time of the year.

The market now is sending out some choice tidbits and one or two added to your menu will be appreciated. Crisp radishes, firm head lettuce, new cabbage, crisp celery—these are some of the regulars—then there are the specialties that come along.

TRUST OF SCHOOLS JUMPS 500% IN NOV.

Multiplying Their Savings, Children Teach Parents.

2830 Philadelphia Kiddled, Twelve Years Old, Save $11,371.27 in November.

The lessons of waste and extravagance which men and women, whose wages were boosted far above their peacetime income by the sudden artificial prosperity, learned to their cost, are fast being unlearned by their children in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware schools.

In many homes parents are figuratively sitting at the feet of their children and receiving instruction in thrift, while the little tots learn in the schoolroom.

Thanks to the enthusiasm and tireless efforts of the teachers, the month of November shows an increase of 500 per cent in savings and investment in Thrift and Savings Stamps, over any previous month.

Many of these schools are already 100 per cent organized into the Government Savings Societies for the purpose of studying and practicing of saving. The study comes in regular lessons based on text books supplied by the Savings Division, Philadelphia. The practice consists in systematic buying of stamps through miniature banks in connection with each savings society in charge of a teacher.

Lycoming, Tioga, Cameron, Bucks, McKean and Centre Counties, in Pennsylvania, and Gloucester County in New Jersey, lead the Third Federal Reserve District in a 100 per cent enrollment of all their schools. The government realized substantial returns from the youthful bankers and concrete proof of this success is abundant. During November $308 pupils, members of Philadelphia Savings Societies, saved $11,371.27. It is to be remembered that this saving comes out of the tiny earnings and scant allowances of youngsters whose average age runs hardly above twelve years.

The reports from all the districts are splendid. A school in Carney's Point, N. J., with 108 pupils, saved $117.00 in stamps in November. One thousand nine hundred and fifty-five scholars, members of the War Savings Societies in schools of McKean County saved through stamps $1,823.95 in November and $2,010.31 to date. The Jersey Shore schools, with 1234 savers and depositors, saved $2,717.70 to date. These are only a few among many striking samples of real saving.

PATRIOTS' CREED TO CURE ECONOMIC ILLS

I believe in the United States of America.

My opportunity and hope depend upon her future.

I believe that her stability and progress rest upon the thrift and industry of her people.

Therefore I will work hard and live simply.

I will spend less than I earn.

I will use my earnings with care.

I will save consistently.

I will invest thoughtfully.

To increase the financial strength of my country and myself I will buy government securities.

I will hold above all other obligations my country thus incurs.

I will do these things to insure the greatness of America's future.

The $4.12 you put in a Savings Stamp this month will not only give you $5.00 in cash when it is redeemed by the government on January 1st, 1935, but the $5.00 then probably will buy nearly twice what it does now.

Thrift beats the profiteer and brings down high prices.

BASEBALL POW-WOWS ON IN WINDY CITY

Moguls to Select Commission Head, Make Schedules and Argue With Minors

CHICAGO, ILL., Feb. 10—(United Press)—Baseball doctors will put their fingers on the pulse of the sport and diagnose some of the ills of the national pastime at a series of important conferences starting here today.

Future of the diamond game depends to some extent upon the results of pow-wows between the major leagues, in individual and joint sessions, a meeting of the national commission and a conference with the minors.

Free of internal strife, the National league magnates have nothing on their schedule that promises red head-lines for the sport pages. There may be some differences on the award of "plum dates" on the 1920 schedule and they may not be unanimous in a choice for a new commission chairman but President John Heydler is confident of being able to steer his bark around any threatening rocks.

Of late, the American league meeting smells of brimstone. The two factions—the "faithful five" of Ban Johnson and the "rebellious three" probably will toe the mark with huge chips on each shoulder.

The barons of the younger circuit have a heavy card of business carried over from the December meeting in New York which ended in a row. In addition, they have the new schedule to consider. It's Ban Johnson's schedule and anything of Ban's is due for three "nay" votes, as affairs now exist in the league.

Selection of a chairman to take the post which Garry Herrman resigned is the ticklish task allotted to the national commission.

American league politics may stick its pugnaious fist into this session if Henry J. Killilea is a candidate. The Boston-Chicago-New York clan of insurgents will lobby against his choice on the grounds that he is a Johnson henchman and that his appointment would not loosen the grip that Johnson had on the commission through his lieutenant, the Red Chieftan.

National league magnates are said to favor anyone who knows baseball and who hasn't a financial string on any club in either league. Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, local jurist and fan, has been spoken of for more than a year and while he has the support of the National league he is said to be opposed by Johnson. Other candidates who have been in print since Herrman pronounced his intention of giving up the scepter are "Big Bill" Edwards, John B. Foster and Senator James H. Walker, of New York, sponsor of the new boxing bill in the Empire state.

The conference with the minors is last but not least on the schedule. With common agreement on only a few points, the moguls face the task of drawing up a new agreement that meets with the approval of both factions.

One of the demands of the minors, which may meet with disapproval, is for representation on the national commission. New provisions for the draft and other important measures are to be considered also.

HOPPE-PETERSON BILLIARD MATCH ATTRACTING A LOT OF ATTENTION

These Two Champions Will Give Clearfield Followers of The Cushion Games
A Great Exhibition

The class of a sport is judged by the ability and personality of its leaders.

What would baseball be without its Ty Cobbs, Babe Ruths, Walter Johnsons, Tris Speakers, Larry Lajoies and other notables?

What would boxing be without its bane have kept the featherweights in front.

In billiards an active champion must be on top. Personality, as well as ability, is essential. For the first time on record, billiards now boasts of three leaders having all the necessary qualifications.

WILLIAM F. HOPPE, CHAMPION OF THE WORLD.

Benny Leonard, Johnny Kilbane and Jack Dempsey?

It takes an active champion to keep a sport active and alive. Facts prove this only too clearly.

Without a Hoppe on the throne, where would the billiard game stand? Hoppe—the Hoppe personality and the Hoppe game—has made billiards rate high.

Connie Mack's Athletics failed as a gate attraction because it was too much machine, too little color. Individuality in play, regardless of the branch of sport, is what the fans demand and what they must have.

The lightweight division in boxing, always a popular section, almost passed out under the colorless and unpopular reign of Freddy Welsh. Benny Leonard has been the lifesaver. Abe Attell and Johnny Kil-

Hoppe will play Peterson an exhibition match at the "Y" Gymnasium Friday afternoon and evening, at 3:30 and 8:30.Adv.

WE have outlined the EASY PAYMENT PLAN whereby You Can Own One by paying $10.00 down and the balance in easy monthly payments.

Now if you wish us to have an expert show you in your own home just how swiftly a Thor will dissolve your wash-day troubles as well as dissolve the dirt in your clothes, you must let us know at once.

REACH for your telephone! Do it now because the experts who have been here showing scores of housewives what a Real Washing Machine can do, will leave soon.

WHY THE THOR IS THE SUPREME MACHINE

It has the all-metal, full-swinging wringer, which cannot be operated until locked in position.
It is built to wear and will last a lifetime.
It is unqualifiedly guaranteed by the Hurley Machine Company, the largest manufacturer of washing machines in the world.
It is a cylinder machine and every laundryman in this country will tell you that he uses cylinder machines and that they are the only practical thing.
It washes clothes clean—absolutely clean—without tearing or otherwise damaging them. A sweet, White Maple cylinder does the work.

The Thor has a full-length gas-burner that boils your clothes while they are being washed. This insures spotlessly white and sterilized garments.
Electric current and gas for operation costs approximately three cents per hour.
There are no belts to break or catch the clothes of the operator; steel shafts and gears all enclosed assure safety first and make it foolproof.
The Thor has stood the test of fourteen years' service and today is used in more than 600,000 American homes.
Good Housekeeping Institute unqualifiedly endorses the Thor.

WOMEN CELEBRATE VOTE VICTORIES

CHICAGO, Feb. 12. (United Press.)—Celebrating the "emancipation of American women," national suffrage leaders in meeting here today at the first National Congress of the League of Women Voters, paid tribute to Abraham Lincoln and Susan B. Anthony.

More than two thousand women, representing every state in the Union, and many of them prominent in national politics of the two great parties, were in the city to attend the ratification convention. The meeting, according to Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, national president, "is the most momentous of all conventions held in the last fifty-one years."

The joint celebrations held on the 111th anniversary of the birth of Lincoln and on the 100 anniversary of the birth of Susan B. Anthony—February 16—were originally planned to rejoice over the victory of women in obtaining passage of the amendment to the Constitution enfranchising women. Up to date, however, only twenty-seven states have ratified the amendment.

Outstanding features on the program of the seven-day session are:

February 12—"Pioneer luncheon" for early campaigners for suffrage.

February 13.—First business session of the suffrage association.

February 14.—Ratification banquet.

February 15.—Memorial service for the late Dr. Anna Howard Shaw. Memorial to Susan B. Anthony, framers of the suffrage amendment.

February 16.—Election of officers of the National American Woman's Suffrage Association.

February 17.—Election of the League of Women Voters.

these difficult settings, in an effort to have them really accurate. The result will prove a revelation to Clearfield people. A visit to Saint Francis High School auditorium on Thursday or Friday night will not only provide delightful entertainment, but it will convince one that this ambitious little group have taken long strides toward perfecting a worthy form of drama—the one-act play.

Many amateurs cling to the long play, because this is the form most familiar to audiences, and also because people have become accustomed to follow drama of this length and groups, like the Saint Francis Dramatic club, have turned to the one-act play.

The most alluring feature of short plays is the demands of their stage settings. They offer the widest scope for originality, for novelty of everyday life. One-act plays make the most startling demands—a light-house interior, the operating theatre of a hospital, the engine room of a submarine, a man's heart, the Gate of Heaven, the forecastle of a tramp steamer. As a bill of one-act plays includes four or five, the expense of many settings may run high. Yet in making such stage decorations lies one of the keenest delights of play producing.

NEAT GAUSE OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take a glass of Salts if your Back hurts or Bladder bothers—Meat forms uric acid.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

Gossip for Tonight's Tea Table

William B. Condo, the Philpsburg liveryman and horse-dealer, was transacting business in Clearfield yesterday. Bill is an old-time Clearfield county citizen and is almost as well known here as he is in his home town.

John Connelly left last evening for Detroit, where he expects to spend four or five days at the home of his sister, Mrs. W. A. Flanagan.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Curry, at their home on West Second street, on Sunday morning, a 10 pound gill baby.

Mrs. Glen Schnarrs and son Glen, Jr., of Marietta, are visiting their mother and grandmother, Mrs. Fred Cardon on Cherry street.

Mrs. Ira C. McCloskey and nephew Clifford McClure, have returned from Pittsburgh, where they visited with Deputy Marshal Ira C. McCloskey.

Miss Elizabeth Fleck has returned from spending a few days with relatives in Allport.

Mrs. John A. Stock has returned from Indianapolis, where she visited her daughter, Mrs. Ray Ruddle.

Dan Irvin, of Curwensville, transacted business in town today.

Mrs. James Shearer was called to Akron, Ohio, yesterday, on account of the illness of her daughter Pleasant, who left last week to visit with relatives and friends there, and was taken down with flu and pneumonia.

Miss Elsie Haney was brought home from Clarion Normal, to be operated upon for appendicitis.

P. S. Hildebrand left this morning for Mackelham, on business for the Welchans' Elevator Company.

Reese Shaw left this morning on a month's trip through the southern states.

Miss Gussie Wilson is ill with the flu at her home on Clearfield street.

A. H. Woodward is transacting business in Norristown this week.

Malcolm Cox has returned from a visit with relatives and friends in New York.

Saul Robinson, of Curwensville, attended the show at the Driggs Theatre last evening.

Mrs. Weir Mullen and Mrs. Thomas Mullen, of Tyrone, spent yesterday with friends here.

Miss Anna Brown of Kewawaydin, is visiting with friends here.

John Shangraw, of Williamsport, is spending a few days with friends here.

Mrs. J. M. McDowell, of Park avenue, left Pittsburgh on New Year's Day, to spend the winter with her daughter, Mrs. E. H. Ganes, of 926 East Twenty-ninth street, Los Angeles, California. After enjoying the land of flowers a few weeks, she was suddenly taken very ill and an immediate operation was found to be necessary. Later she was forced to undergo a second operation. Mr. McDowell is frequently informed of her condition by telegraph. The last word was that she was slowly improving. Her friends here hope to hear soon that she has entirely recovered and that she will return next May in perfect health.

Flegals Store News

"Why are prices on men's and boys' clothing 50 per cent. higher for Spring 1920? The war is over, why not a decline in prices? Somebody is profiteering" etc. etc. This is what we hear and what we read.

Don't believe all you hear, or all you read these days. Don't go too strong on the "profiteer" story and theory as the cause of all our troubles.

Manufacturers and merchants as a rule are honest and do business on the level. Merchants' investments are double what they used to be. Merchants' expenses are double what they were before the war. Merchants sell goods in many lines of their stock for less than prevailing wholesale prices for months and months (as long as their old stocks last), before new goods compel them to advance prices. Many merchants are making less money today than they made before the war, and their risks are very much greater. Their investments are larger. Their expenses are doubled. Their taxes are higher.

Regardless of what you read in the papers, or what you think, or what you believe—here is a statement of fact and must be faced: Clothing prices for Spring 1920, are 50 per cent higher.

Our present stock, at present prices, is your during February and March, or while the stock lasts.

Little Drops of Water.

It has been said that people are as ignorant of the size of the sea as they are of matters dealing with astronomy.

Few are aware for instance, that the Pacific ocean covers 65,000,000 miles; the Atlantic 30,000,000 miles, and the Indian ocean, Arctic and Antarctic 42,000,000.

To show away the contents of the Pacific it would be necessary to fill a tank one mile long, one mile wide, and one mile deep every day for 440 years. Put in figures the Pacific holds in weight 254,000,000,000,000,000,000 tons.

The Atlantic averages a depth of not quite three miles. Its waters weigh 325,000,000,000,000,000 tons, and a tank to contain it would have each of its sides 430 miles long.

BAD COUGH; NIGHT SWEATS; LOST WEIGHT

Mr. Coleman thought his time had come. But he's well now.

"I was taken with a dry, hard cough about 6 months ago. Finally I got so sore across the chest I could hardly breathe; had night sweats so bad everything would be wringing wet, and coughed continually until I thought it would kill me. Had no appetite, spent over $100 on doctors and medicines, and was worse off than when I started."

"The first bottle of Mils Emulsion did me more good than all the $100 spent for other treatment. It soon gave me a good appetite, my cough left me, and I have regained the flesh and strength I had before I was sick."

Arthur Coleman, Box 301, Helena, Ark.

You need an appetite, a good stomach, and some real strength if you want to fight off disease. Give Mils Emulsion a trial at its maker's risk.

Mils Emulsion is a pleasant, nutritious food and a corrective medicine. It restores healthy, natural bowel action, doing away with all need of pills and purgatives. It promotes appetite and quickens the digestive organs in shape to assimilate food. As a builder of flesh and strength, Mils Emulsion is strongly recommended to those whose strength has weakened, and is a powerful aid in restoring and repairing the effects of wasting diseases. Chronic stomach trouble and constipation are promptly relieved—usually in one day.

It is the only solid emulsion made, and so palatable that it is eaten with a spoon like ice cream.

No matter how severe your case, you are urged to try Mils Emulsion under this guarantee—Take six bottles home with you, use it according to directions and if not satisfied with the results, your money will be promptly refunded. Price 60c and $1.20 per bottle. The Mils Emulsion Co., Terre Haute, Ind. Sold by druggists everywhere.

Guaranteed by Stewart's Drug Store.

Replant Your Lost Teeth.

When one's front teeth are knocked out there is no need to leave them on the floor, for they can be reinserted by a good dentist.

Dr. H. M. Savery tells in the Lancet (London), of two cases, in each of which several teeth were dislocated from their sockets. In one case the teeth were placed in salt water while the dentist carefully washed out the sockets. Then they were reinserted, a stitch or two taken in the gums and the jaws were bandaged about so that the teeth bit on a pad of lint. In the other case the teeth still hung to the gums, so the sockets were cleaned out without detaching the teeth. In both cases the teeth became solidly fixed and the patients could use them for normal biting in a few months after the accident.

Dr. De Witt C. Henry of New York replaced not long ago the teeth of a truck driver that had been knocked out in a collision. The man had picked his teeth from the gutter and ran up to the dentist's office carrying them in his hand.

Even the world war ended sooner than many persons expected it would; the rare riots are over; many of the temperamental strikers are returning to work and food prices are coming down. Maybe the world is on the way back to sanity.

SULPHUR IS BEST TO CLEAN UP MOLY, BROKEN OUT SKIN

Any breaking out or skin irritation on face, neck or body is overcome quickest by applying Menth-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist.

Because of its germ destroying properties, nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation that instantly brings calm from the itching, burning and irritation.

Menth-Sulphur keeps your skin right up, leaving the skin clear and smooth. It seldom fails to relieve the torment or disfigurement. A little jar of Menth-Sulphur may be obtained at any drug store. It is used like cold cream.
